EXPERIENCE

Peter Elliott is a Melbourne architect and urban designer who commenced practice in 1975 immediately upon graduation from the University of Melbourne. He completed a Master of Architecture by Project at RMIT in 1993. He has maintained his practice along with a sustained interest in architectural education, having held various teaching positions at RMIT University, the University of Melbourne and is currently an Adjunct Professor and Senior Research Fellow at the Faculty of Art Design & Architecture at Monash University. In 2015 he was awarded a Doctor of Architecture honoris causa by the University of Melbourne.

He has a special interest in the design of the public realm, and has lectured and written extensively on contemporary architecture and urban design. The work of the practice has won more than seventy national and state architectural and industry awards, including the 1991 Victorian Architecture Medal for the Carlton Baths & Community Centre. In 1987 Peter Elliott was awarded an Order of Australia (AM) for services to architecture and public housing.

The early practice focused on recreation and community facilities, childcare and public housing – all of which exhibited an empathy with human needs and an ability to resolve these with studied, often small-scaled design interventions.

Projects include the Carlton Baths and Community Centre 1989 & 2013, the Robert Clark Horticultural Centre in Ballarat 1994 and the Spencer Street footbridge 1999, Observatory Gate at the Royal Botanic Gardens, 2000 and the Victoria University Law School, 2003.

From the mid 1990's Peter Elliott has been working on the Urban Spaces project at RMIT's city campus, drawing on his powers of empathy, his deep understanding of the city in which he works and his refined architectural practice. Knowing what to leave alone and how far to go to bring history into the present, Peter Elliott has painstakingly woven this mottled patch of streets, lanes and buildings into the urban fabric of Melbourne. In 2015 he authored a monograph book on the project titled "Episodic Urbanism – RMIT Urban Spaces Project 1996 – 2015" published by URO Publications.

More recently he has been working on large scale urban bridge and freeway projects like the Barwon Heads pedestrian bridge 2011, Deer Park Bypass 2009, M80 ring road and M2 Tullamarine Freeway upgrades. In 2015 he was commissioned for a major new extension to Parliament House in Spring Street and the redevelopment of the Alexander Theatre into a performing arts complex at Monash University Clayton campus.

Aside from his interest in practice and education, Peter Elliott has had an active participation in a number of professional and community organisations, committees and juries. He is a Life Fellow of the Australian Institute of Architects and a member of the Victorian Design Review Panel among other roles.
