Experience

Sean van der Velden commenced work with the practice over 10 years ago as a first year architecture student at RMIT University. He has worked on a diverse range of project during this time and has developed a good working rapport with many of our ongoing clients.

Sean has a close working relationship with Peter Elliott, typically working closely together during the development of concepts at the early phase of a project. He has also been involved in many of the firms continuing Master Planning commissions such as Melbourne Grammar School and RMIT University.

In addition he has an enthusiastic interest in graphic communication and in particular wayfinding strategies. He has designed and developed the practice website and is responsible for much of the promotional and presentation material produced by the office.
